

Arcadia or The Machine in the Garden 12 min HD video loop, 2019 Andrew McKee & Shirley Watts. Sagehen fire at the Los Angeles County Arboretum.

Natural Discourse@Sagehen

Following Digital Nature 2019 at the LA Arboretum in February, Natural Discourse is taking artists, artwork and projectors out to the Sierras.

As part of Future Forests, Sagehen Creek Field Station and Natural Discourse are inviting a small group of artists, scientists, community organizers, representatives from Cal Fire, US Forest Service, other agencies and local NGOs for a spectacular evening at Sagehen Creek Field Station near Truckee, CA.

This is your invitation to this exciting event at an extraordinary place

Saturday August 10, 2019
starting at 5 pm

TICKETS:

www.brownpapertickets.com/event/4263936

- Introductory talk about experimental forestry and fire research at Sagehen by Jeff Brown Director/Manager of the field station
- Reception with the artists
- Catered dinner
- Performance by Sasha Petrenko
- Projections and other art installations at the field station

Tickets include access to the event for one person including dinner and drinks. Please consider an additional donation. We are doing this because it's a brilliant idea and we think that art can help save the planet, support us if you can!

Early bird tickets $50 before June 14th, $75 dollars until the cut off date of August 3rd.
NO TICKETS WILL BE SOLD AT THE DOOR.

Due to access and parking, the total number of participants is limited to 125 people, THIS IS FILLING UP QUICKLY, reserve your place now if you want to join us.

The field station is located about 12-miles north of Truckee, CA, off of Highway-89. More information and directions on the website: sagehen.ucnrs.org/plan-your-visit/faqs/

This is an outdoor event in the woods, appropriate footwear is advised. It cools off in the evening, bring a jacket or wrap. Mosquitos shouldn't be a problem, but if you are especially sensitive, bring some repellent.

Sagehen is a scientific field station; important research is going on here, therefore ABSOLUTELY NO PET DOGS ARE ALLOWED AT THE FIELD STATION, PLEASE DON'T ASK! ANYONE SHOWING UP WITH A DOG WILL BE DENIED ACCESS.

Anyone with special needs should get in touch with the field station at least 3 weeks prior to the event to discuss how the station can best accommodate you: sagehen@berkeley.edu

About us

Participating artists: Kevin Cooley, Shane DuBay and Carl Fuldner, Erin Espelie, David Opdyke, Deborah Oropallo and Andy Rappaport, Andrew McKee and Shirley Watts, and Sasha Petrenko.

Established in 1951, Sagehen Creek Field Station is a research and teaching facility of the University of California at Berkeley located in the Central Sierra Nevada north of Truckee, California. The station is embedded within the 9,000-acre Sagehen Experimental Forest, which is cooperatively and collaboratively managed in a partnership between the University of California, the US Forest Service's Pacific Southwest Research Station and the Tahoe National Forest.

sagehen.ucnrs.org

Natural Discourse: Artists, Architects, Scientists & Poets in the Garden is an ongoing series of symposia, publications and site-specific art installations that explore the connections between art, architecture and science within the framework of botanical gardens and natural history museums.

naturaldiscourse.org

Future Forests' partner artists, scientists, businesses, policy-makers and land managers are working to change the culture around forest fire in the western US.

forest.ucnrs.org